CITY INTELLIGENCE.

THE DEVELOPMENT OF MANHOOD"—LECTURE BY MON. JAMES POLLOCK AT CHESTER.—Notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather, National Hall, Chester, was well filled last evening by an intelligent andience. The occasion was the delivery of a lecture by the Hon. James Pollock, of this city, on the intellectual development of mankind as portayed by history. The object of the lecture was a purely charitable one, and was given under the auspices of Post Wildle, Grand Army of the Republic, of Chester.

EAt 8 O'clock Dr. Theodore S. Christman came forward and said that, at the request of the committee, ae would introduce Colonel Bosbyshell, the Grand Commander of the Grand Army in this State, who and been requested to introduce to the audience the distinguished lecturer. Colonel Bosbyshell was re-ceived with applause. The gentleman prefaced his introduction with a few remarks, in which he said introduction with a few remarks, in which he said that the order under whose auspices this lecture was being given was accused of being a political one. He would assure his hearers that it had nothing to do with politics, but had far nobler aspirations. It has for its mainspring of action the Heaven-born virtue of charity, and hopes, by that spirit of fraternity that ever clings about companions in arms, to aid, instruct, and educate its comrades and comrades families. In continuing, the speaker said that the order delighted to honor the men who had stood by the souliers in the dark days of the had stood by the soldiers in the dark days of the war, and at the solicitation of Post Wildie, he took great pleasure in introducing the Hon. James Polock, a man who gave his oldest son to save the nation's unity, and who himself was one of the few men in office who used his position to aid soldiers into places. The speaker was longly applieded at men in office who used his position to aid soldiers into places. The speaker was loudly applicated at the close of his remarks.

Ex-Governor Pollock, in opening, remarked that, as a lecturer, he certainly felt out of place. He had been invited to deliver a lecture, but it was a matter entirely out of his line; yet he was glad to appear before so fine an audience, and whether what he was about to say could be considered as a lecture or not, he felt honored at being called upon. He was pleased to know that on this occasion he was not in the service of any political organization, for, as you have heard, the Grand Army is not a political organization, unless you declare that the brave fellows zation, unless you declare that the brave fellows who stood the shock of battle and who gave their blood for the perpetuation of the nation were politicians. He was always glad to lend his services in Behalf of charity, for it, like the bright sun of a glo-rious May morning, glids our paths through life and reflects bright shadows wherever it exists. The speaker continued his remarks by saying that "Man-kood" was the prime element of his discourse. He would treat man as he found him, as he affected society, but more particularly as he was represented in the American citizen. In turn the speaker took up man as he was found in different ages and counup man as he was found in different ages and countries from the hour Adam had first appeared upon the earth, and glowingly pictured the different epochs which marked the march of intellect and Christianity and their influences on the human family. The speaker had been called a Scotch-trishman, and he never denied it; but for all that he was an American. He argued that we all sprang from the Latin or Anglo-Saxon race, and yet the intellectual development as displayed in our Government made us all peculiar and above all Government made us all peculiar and above all Americans. France might boast of her Government, so also England, Russia, and Austria, but none of the people of those countries were free; all were subservient to the State; here the people were supremetand guided the government of the State by their own free will. In ancient times it was a great thing to be a Roman. Paul claimed to be a Roman citizen; a Roman citizen held a position which a Roman citizen held a position which commanded the admiration and respect of all people, and yet, to-day the American citizen held a higher position than a resident of Rome ever did, because here we rule; there they were ruled; everything was subject to the State; the people were but subjects. In closing his remarks the lecturer spoke feelingly of our struggles as a nation, and paid a glowing tribute to the youths of the present day, on whom in a few short years would devolve the cares and responsibilities of twice. would devolve the cares and responsibilities of takin care of the destinies of a great country and a great people. He was loudly applauded at the close of his discourse, and after a few well-chosen remarks, in behalf of Post Wildle, from General Louis Wagner, the audience dispersed, apparently well pleased with the evening's entertainment.

Slavery Society was held this morning at 10% o'clock, in the Assembly Buildings. President Robert Purvis in the chair.

In the absence of the regular secretary, from Ilness, Miss Annie Heacock, of Montgomery county, was appointed in her place.

The President, in his opening address, spoke of its being the thirty-second anniversary of the society. The work of the society is not yet quite accomplished. Slavery is dead, but the demon still lives in the spirit of caste. The freedmen were nominally free, but yet had to bear the scorn and contempt of the community. The duty of the society will not be accomplished until that great privilege, the ballot, is given to the black man. The platform was declared free, as it has always been, and an invitation was extended to all who may feel interested to address the meeting.

Mrs. Lucretia Mott spoke of the great causes of thankfulness and congratulation for the events of the past year. The fifteenth amendment is very nearly passed. The prejudice against the colored man will pass away as his rights are recognized. A universal gathering to give evidence that the giorying has not been in vain was spoken of, either in New York, Palladelphia, or wherever it may be most convenient.

Mr. Robert Purvis thought it not right to join the hallein and until fairly out of the woods.

Mr. Charles C. Burleigh spoke of the difficulty with which the enfranchisement of the freedmen in the former slave States was accomplished. The colored man is slow to recognize any show of liberal spirit on the part of the white man. This was to be expected, when we take into account the spirit with which the colored man has been treated for ages. The great prejudice against color will speedily die out, though hardly to be expected in the present generation. But a generation is a short time in the history of a nation, and a shorter time in the history of a race. The colored man will yet stand side by side with his white brother, on a platform far higher than his white brother could have attained by his own exertions.

Miss Mary Grew, the Corresponding Secretary, said she hoped this would be the last annual meeting of the society that it would be necessary to call. She thanked God that the work was approaching consummation. It is no more the day of mob law, Lynch law, and statute law. were cordially invited to attend, whether approving the objects of the meeting or not.

The Executive Committee gave a verbal report of the doings of the past year.

The committee came together on one afternoon in each month for the purpose of doing what they could to further the passage of the fifteenth amendment, on the supposition that when that is passed the work is done. The freedmen's schools will not be necessary when the ballot is universal. Give the freedman a vote and he will assess the property of freedman a vote and he will assess the property of the South, and the money thus raised will pay for the maintenance of the schools. The United States now upholds the rights of the freedman at very great expense by, and not without the use of, the brillet. The committee have published some pam-philets and helped the efforts of anti-slavery publica-tions. The Juki Slavery Standard's circuistion has ions. The Anti-Slavery Standard's circulation has tions. The Anti-Slavery Standard's circulation has been increased by their efforts.

When the fifteenth amendment is passed, the society expects to hold a jubilee somewhere.

Mr. Moriarty, President of the Irish Republican Association, thought that other societies, as well as that of Philadelphia, ought to have part of the credit for the good reception the amendment has had. The Irish Republican Association was one of these.

The following resolutions were offered:—

Resolved. That in the apparent indifference of the Federal Government towards the condition of the colored race in the South, and the persistent and formidable oppression exercised towards them by the white Rebels, we see lamentable evidences of the need of constant vigilance on the part of all the friends of free-lom. Mr. Kilgore spoke of work which had yet to be done by the society. He said the work would not be done in a few menths, and then to be wound up y a grand jollification. There are other kinds of gavery in the United States beside that of four millions of colored men. The President stated that the object of the society was specific, and did not include other kinds.

Mr. Killgore said that the Democratic party was a great hindrance to the work, but he feared more from the aristocratic Republicans than the hard-working Democrats. After the fifteenth amendment is passed, the country will soon need a sixteenth.
Funds were asked for to send a copy of the AntiSlavery Standard to every member of Congress for one year.

Mr. Burleigh said that it would be untrue to the ontract which they had entered into with their friends in the beginning to make other objects the work of the society than that for which they had first been ioined together. Other objects have been incidentally connected with the society, as woman's

Mr. Burleigh thought not, because no man is allowed to place his wife upon the block and sell her to another husband. He thought that other societies could be formed from the same material when this society is broken up, for kindred objects, which would be better than changing the aim of the present organization.

Dr. Child remarked that if the members of the Anti-Slavery Society were dragged into a contest for Woman's Rights or some other reform movement, they would be like drafted men, not volunteers, and would be worthless. But the spirit of humanity which had been working in their minds would soon bring recruits from many who are certainly interested, to the ranks of any society which would be ormed for any such purpose.

Mr. Kilgore thought that the breaking up of the organization and present working machinery would be a great loss, which it would take some time to Denial of the Charges Made Against the Naval Paymasters.

Despatch to The Evening Telegraph. Despatch to The Evening Telegraph.

Washington, Nov. 17. — The statement telegraphed that a number of naval paymasters have been found defaulters is a most outrageous talsehood on that class of gentiemen in the navy. The statement is one part of a systematic attack about to be commenced on the staff officers of the navy by some persons high in naval authority, with a view to affect Congress, if the question of the rights of the line and staff officers comes before it for some legislative action.

The only foundation for any such charge is that a paymaster on the Pacific coast was accused of having used about one hundred thousand dollars of Government money, but as his accounts were not in the process of settlement, nothing definite can be ascertained. Paymaster Marcy's Defalcations. Special Despatch to The Evening Telegraph.

Washington, Nov. 17.—The published statements about navy paymasters being defaulters are greatly exaggerated. Paymaster Marcy, who was on the Pacific coast, is a defaulter to the tune of one hun-

DRAWBACK FRAUDS.

A List of the New York Custom House Con-spirators.

The N. Y. Tribune of this morning says:—
So many indefinite and unauthorized statements have been made concerning the drawback frauds and those implicated in them that a list of the conspirators, carefully prepared from the officia records, may be of value to the public. The interes awakened by the recent developments centres mainly in the case of Deputy Collector Samuel T. Blatchford, not only on account of the weight of evidence against him and of his high social and official standing, but also by reason of the fact that he has so effectually concealed himself that the two detectives who have held, since last week, the warrant for his arrest, have not been able to find him. The United States District Attorney, however, discredits the rumors that Biatchford has fied to Canada, and is confident that he was seen in this city last Saturday evening, and that he is still here. District Attorney Pietrepolt intends to proceed avainst all the compil-Pierreport intends to proceed against all the conspi-rators, the Deputy Collector included, to the full ex-tent of the law. On a par with Blatchford, so far as criminal misuse of official position is concerned, according to testingony thus far elicited, stands Francis A. Howard, who was a cierk in the Treasury Department at Washington when the principal frands were committed, and is now a banker in Wall street. He has been indicted for his offenses, and is under $20,000 ball. Charles J. Theriott, who succeeded Balatonead as chief clerk of the Drawback ceeded Biatchford as chief cierk of the Drawback Bureau in the Custom-House, is also indicted and under $10,000 bail, while Hugo Somers, who preceded under $10,000 bail, while Hugo Somers, who preceded Blatchford in the same position, and is said to have been the first official connected with these frands, has since died. Next in culpability to these dishonest officers should be placed the three Caldwells, honest officers should be placed the three Caldwells, who made out the franchient claims and pocketed two-fifths of the proceeds. James Caldwell is under $10,000 bail, but John S. and Robert B. have fied to Canada. Next to the Caldwells come William H. Whimster, twice indicted, under $20,000 bail, and dlying from a third warrant; James T. Wellwood and C. B. Young, hiding from a rrest; Charles R. Squires, H. A. Dickinson, George W. Green, and Alexander Grant, Jr., indicted and under $10,000 bail; Romeyn Muilisan and L. L. Laidlaw, under bail in the same amount; Julius H. Mott, indicted and escaped to Europe: Win, J. Korn, indicted and under $10,000 bail, and Charles H. Wilsou, both of whom have turned State's evidence. There are several others whose cases are under investigation, but the evidence against them is 20t enough to warrant their arrest or the publication of their names.
